FOREWORD

A comprehensive, dependable and up-to-date statistical information base is essential for sound decision-making by regulators worldwide. There is a need to disseminate information about the Indian securities market at one place to all stakeholders, viz., investors, intermediaries, institutions, researchers and others on a regular basis. With this objective, Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) has been making continuous efforts to fulfill this specific need. While the first edition of the Handbook of statistics was published in 2004, the content of subsequent editions have been continuously updated and enriched.

This edition of the “Handbook of Statistics on the Indian Securities Market 2017”, published by the Securities and Exchange Board of India serves as a useful publication. The Handbook provides historical data on the Indian securities market at one place arranged in an annual and monthly series. The volume also contains tables on the international securities market. The data for this Handbook has been compiled from SEBI, Reserve Bank of India, stock exchanges, commodity exchanges, credit rating agencies, depositories, World Federation of Exchanges and others. The Handbook is available both in hardcover and online on SEBI website with download option in various formats, which enables users to access the most up-to-date data around the clock.

I believe the Handbook will be useful for policy-makers, institutions, market participants, academicians, researchers and all others interested in the development of the Indian securities market. We would welcome feedback on the same and suggestions for further improvement.

Notes:

- For CDSL, prior to April 2012, the Companies Live figure included the no. of mutual fund schemes along with the no. of mutual fund companies but since April 2012, the Companies Live figure includes only the number of mutual fund companies and not the schemes.
- Demat Value represents Market Value of Dematerialised Securities, which includes Equity, Debentures and MF units.
